Archived copy for hoques.com · Daily Mail · September 2, 2011

Baby that's cute! Loving parents create funny pictures of their four-month-old son

By Daily Mail Reporter

A proud couple have created an adorable set of baby photos with a difference - by putting their son in a variety of surreal poses.

Ehsan Hoque, 30, and his wife Nafisa dedicated hours to creating the cute and funny pictures starring their four-month-old son.

Baby Wali can be seen exploring space, running away from the Big Bad Wolf and rowing his own boat in the series of pictures that were created using just household objects.

> Masterchef: The parents of little Wali Hoque cook up a bit of fun using everyday kitchen food and utensils complete with a chef's hat for baby

> Larking about in the park: Using household objects to create balloons and cloudy blue sky, baby Wali enjoys a 'day out'

One shows him holding a cluster of balloons in front of a cloudy blue sky made of household fabrics.

Another has the tot starring as a chef, complete with hat and wooden spoon, surrounded by food from the family's kitchen.

The pictures were created using bed sheets, blankets, clothes, scarves and toys to build the scenery, while Wali's mum waited off camera to keep him smiling.

The couple wanted to capture Wali during happy moments after being deprived of sleep for the first six weeks of his life because he suffered from colic.

Ehsan, a PhD student from Massachusetts, said: 'After our son was born in May we realised we were dealing with a colicky baby who was awake and restless most of the time.

'We were up at odd hours of the night and enjoying parenthood was becoming a bit of a challenge.

> The final frontier: Wali has a space walk accompanied by the robot WALL-E

> What big teeth you've got: Wali appears to be running away from the Big Bad Wolf hiding behind a 'tree'

'Days rolled into weeks and soon our son was almost six-weeks-old. At that point, he was beginning to smile a lot.

'His smiles filled our heart with so much joy that waking up at 4am to change his nappies didn't seem tiring as long as we would get to see him smile.

'We wanted to capture those, rather rare, moments when he smiled at us.

Thus, we decided to take pictures of him at our home with different household items.

'As our baby could get restless at times, we were hesitant on visiting friends or staying outdoors for long durations.

'This gave us all the more reason to do some fun activity with our baby at our home through creativity and photography.

'It gave us something to look forward to every day as my wife and I brainstormed different scenarios and how to be creative in constructing the scenes with everyday household items.

'As we started clicking away, Wali kept on amazing us with his endless expressions that blended with the environment.'

> Hello sailor: Wali in a t-shirt with a fish on the front of it, appears to be rowing a boat with a wooden spoon

---

Original article: https://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2033051/Baby-thats-cute-Loving-parents-create-funny-pictures-smiling-month-old-son-suffered-badly-colic.html
Archived November 2026 for personal reference. Text © Daily Mail; photographs © Ehsan Hoque. Captions marked with a bar accompanied the photographs in the original.